▶ Training Content: There is a progression to how infants and children develop functional skills which range from learning to roll over to learning to write letters. Though each child is different, there is a typical age range for when children learn specific tasks. Resource families can benefit from an understanding of this progression, whether it is to help them support their children in meeting milestones or to recognize when they need to ask for services. The training will also include information about how to seek assistance and what services may be available for children with delays.
